MADRID SCORES A VICTORY

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE suspension of Hope, DeQueen and Prescott High Schools by the Arkansas Athletic association is a matter that won't be remedied by public debate. It should be remembered that we are dealing with boys of high school age. The prestige of our city, or of some other city, is not nearly so important as keeping the whole environment of school football clean and safe.

At Least 200 Dead in Earthquake on Caribbean Island

City of San Vicente, on Salvador, Destroyed During Week-End

LOSS IS UNKNOWN

Communication With Capital, San Salvador, Cut Off for a Time

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador.—(AP)—Officials expressed fear Monday of a mounting death toll in the devastating earthquake which razed almost all of San Vicente and killed at least 200 persons over the week-end.

All available relief has been dispatched to the stricken area.

City Wiped Out

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador.—(AP)—Approximately 200 bodies were recovered Sunday from the ruins of San Vicente, razed Saturday night by a devastating earthquake, it was reported Sunday night by the first arrivals from the provincial capital.

San Vicente, witnesses of the ruins said, was virtually destroyed. Families of survivors were reported fleeing to neighboring towns as the tens of thousands of bodies were recovered.

Visitors to the scene of the catastrophe said that villages near San Vicente, 40 miles south of San Salvador, also had suffered greatly from the quake.

Government officials said an accurate estimate of the total dead and injured could not be made immediately because of the extent of the ruins which impeded the rescue parties.

One Street Standing

Arrivals from the city said that only one chief structure remained standing—a tall tower in the central park.

San Vicente's communications with the outside world were cut by the first shocks Saturday night but an emergency telephone line was rigged up hastily.

The mountain of Santa Rita, southwest of San Vicente, was said by one arrival from the city to be erupting. Springs near the base of the volcano San Vicente became subterranean after the provincial capital was devastated, making large supplies of drinking water unfit for use.

(A message received in New York by the Radio Corporation of America said San Vicente was destroyed with an estimated death toll of "at least 220."

Say at Least 220 Dead

(A message received by Mackay Radio said approximately 200 were killed in San Vicente and that the towns of Vera Paz, Guatemala, Apasotegone, Peten, San Salvador, San Lorenzo and Piedad also suffered damage. These reports were received from the companies' stations in Guatemala.)

Walls Fall

Officials who went to San Vicente aboard a special Red Cross train, said many persons were crushed to death as thick-walled buildings fell upon them when most of the townspeople were asleep.

Gen. Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez, president of Salvador, hurried to the scene of the disaster to take personal charge. He was accompanied by Minister of Interior Calderon and other high officials. Parties of doctors and nurses and military detachments of the army also went to the city.

Experts believe the tremors would continue as long as the nearby volcano did not throw out any lava. The volcano, which overlooks the city of San Vicente, has shown signs of increasing activity for several weeks.

Oil Field's 'Too Quiet'

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel Jester, who has operated canteens for 16 years in Texas oil fields, thinks "oil booms aren't what they used to be."

"Everything is too modern and quiet," she says. "I remember when you couldn't see the derricks for mud. I have seen many men killed by falling crown blocks but I wouldn't call that exciting—it happens too often."

Home Harder to Run
HARRISON, Ark.—(AP)—Operating a bank is a "soft job" compared with running a house, says Mrs. Agnes Shinn who does both.

Mrs. Shinn, who five years ago inherited a bank presidency at the death of her husband, reflects: "Mothering six children, seven in-laws and four grandchildren is my biggest job."

She says the secret of successful banking is "being careful with the people's money."

Second in command at the bank Mrs. Shinn directs is another woman, Vice-President Jobelle Holcombe.

Privilege Tax Not for Salary Fund

Supreme Court Reverses Salary Act Ruling in Arkansas County

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court held Monday that the county privilege taxes collected under statutes enacted nearly 50 years ago were public funds and not available for use in paying salaries under provisions of a modern initiated salary act.

The decision reversed and remanded an Arkansas county circuit court judgment.

Don't Let It Be Just Another Day

It can be another dismal winter day, or it can be a joyous Christmas for this little group. Thousands, more fortunate, will sit down to their dinners, thankful that they have been so well remembered. But these children and their mother will have only a prospect of loneliness, without even the bare comforts of life, unless you share with them by contributing to the Goodfellows Fund.

400 Children Visit Saenger Toy Show

Broken Toys Will Be Made New Again by Hope's Fire Department

The most successful benefit performance in the history of Saenger theater was held Monday when more than 400 children—attended the Saenger-Kiwanis show.

The performance was given for the benefit of Hope and Hempstead county's needy children. A committee of the Kiwanis club will distribute the gifts Christmas morning.

Arthur Swank, manager of the theater, was elated over the many gifts and at noon ordered a big truck to the theater to remove them to a storage place until Christmas.

Broken toys were carried to the Hope Fire department where members of that organization will repair and repaint them.

Besides the more than 400 children that brought gifts, many grown-ups attended the show and were admitted when they presented Christmas packages.

Man Is Arrested Twice in an Hour

Matt Nolen, 34, of Blevins, Taken by Officers Twice Saturday

Matt Nolen, 34, of Blevins, was in custody of officers late Saturday for selling liquor without a license, was out on bail, and was "in" again—all within a single hour.

Nolen was first arrested by county officers when they apprehended him with two cases of liquor. He made bail of $150 and was released.

An hour later Sheriff Jim Bearden and Deputy R. O. Robins caught Nolen again. Bail was increased to $300 to cover both charges, and Nolen, posting the new amount, was again released.

Prior to the first arrest the officers had searched the Nolen house in Blevins early Saturday, but, learning that Nolen had left for Hope, they followed him here.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Farmers, workers and coupon clippers, with the expanding revenues of the industrial upturn in their pockets, hoisted the 1936 volume of retail trade to more than $36,000,000, the best level since 1930.

Rising employment, augmented farm income and faster wages for city workers played their part in the buying movement. The soldiers' bonus and increased dividends paid out by hundreds of industrial corporations were credited with a "pump priming" share.

South Sets the Pace
The South, with its expanded industry and 12-cent cotton, led in percentage of increased purchasing. Following closely came the Middle West, where farm income was some 8 per cent higher than last year.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—How would you like to try to get change for a $10,000 bill on a Sunday afternoon? The possibility of the problem arising was 50 per cent greater in 1936, because the number of $10,000 bills in circulation in the country had risen to 21 at the end of September. A year previous there were only 14.

The 1936 total of $36,000,000, estimated by the National Retail Dry Goods association in conjunction with other research organizations, represents a 12 per cent increase over last year's aggregate and is 15 per cent under 1930 and 26 per cent under 1929.

In 1929, with prices at a substantial higher level than in 1936, retail business reached a peak of $49,114,000,000. Buyers in 1936 favored automobiles, apparel and furniture, sales for those article running between 20 and 25 per cent better than last year. Mail order dollar volume was up about 23 per cent.

Luxuries Sell Better
Luxury items—furs, jewelry and the more expensive novelties—had a far wider public than in any of the post-depression years. In the face of considerably higher prices, sales of fur coats and trimmings, Dunn & Bradstreet estimated, jumped more than 30 per cent over last year. Jewelry distribution rose sharply.

Analysts pointed out that the flood of year-end corporation dividends being made available only during the last month or so and expressed the opinion that much of the money so acquired would be spent in January and February.

Hot Springs Man Believes She Burned to Death From Cigarette

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Charged with murder for the death of his wife in a rooming house fire, E. E. Grover, 46, chiropractor, asserted his innocence Monday and advanced the theory that she caused her own death by smoking cigarettes in bed.

Held in jail without bond after his arraignment had been continued until Tuesday, Grover told Detective Lieutenant Cecil Brock that he left the rooming house several hours before the fire broke out in the bedroom occupied by his wife, Mrs. Cleo Grover, 35, and she was smoking in bed when he left her.

Turned Brown By Brown Turner

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—One thing about Christmas is it gives the advertisers a chance to switch the pictures in their ads from streamlined bathing beauties to Santa Claus. You can't pick up a magazine these days without seeing Santa fondling a pint or so of giggling soup, or petting a new automobile. The bewhiskered, kindly old gent has had so much publicity the last few weeks you'd think he had fallen in love with a divorced foreigner and was about to turn over his job to a younger brother, but you'd be mistaken.

From the way he's caused business to pick up it looks like he's a New Dealer in charge of the purchasing department.

Is Fined $25 for Peddler Violation

Woman Convicted of Selling Fur Coats Without License

DaVila Johnson, white woman, was convicted in municipal court Monday and fined $25 for violation of the city's peddler ordinance. She was charged with selling fur coats without a license.

Policeman John Turner said the Johnson woman attempted to escape when officers approached her. An automobile chase followed and she was not stopped until near Emmet.

Policeman Turner asserted that he was forced to drive 90 miles per hour to overtake the automobile driven by the Johnson woman.

Henry Smith was acquitted Monday on a charge of stealing a bull yearling from Carrie Jamison.

Petit larceny charges against John McGhee, charged with stealing 200 feet of lumber from Jake Moore, were dismissed. John Taylor, accused with McGhee, was acquitted.

B. A. Quillen pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was fined $20. Charles McVeen forfeited $10 cash bond for drunkenness, and Ezra Harris pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was fined $10.

Preacher Walker pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace of E. Walker and Marjorie Walker and was fined $25. Willie Hill pleaded guilty to beating Catherine Smith and was fined $5.

M. H. Webb was fined $25 and sentenced to a day in jail for stealing a ham from Ben Mitchell.

Government soil conservation officials say pasture farming has been the principal factor in the recovery of ranges in the Texas panhandle.

—By Mrs. Maude White Key, Pine Bluff, Ark.

If you have spent the year with kind thoughts While all about you folks have been unkind, Then you can smile when dawn's Christmas Day

For joy and happiness will be your find.

If you have lent a helping hand to one whose plight was hopeless till you came along

Most surely through the Star of Christ will shine

This deed of love above the Christmas throng.

If you have borne the shirker's shifted load

To go with your own, nor dared to complain

Your joy will be as great at Christmas-tide.

That yours will be a bit of Heaven's gain.

If you are weak from ravage of disease, Yet count your blessings on your bed of pain,

You'll scatter Christmas sunshine everywhere.

Even tho the day be drab with misty rain.

If you can see the child of wealth receive

The Christmas toys your child has so longed for,

And not feel bitter toward the rich, then you will give your child the greatest gift, by far.

If service, you have rendered unto God

In plenty for the things He's given you.

Then you may know, when comes this Christmas-tide,

That sweetest peace will surely come to you.

Quality is EconomyCamerman to the Quins Is Honor
Justly Bestowed on Expert Fred Davis

By WILLIS THORNTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
CALLANDER, Ont. — Christmas comes a third time for the quintuplets, and one of the most honored guests at their festive board is bound to be Fred Davis, the man whose unexcelled camera has portrayed the children for an eager world.

Many people wonder just why Davis has had this exclusive privilege—what justice there was in giving exclusively this cream of all camera assignments to just one man.

The answer, to anyone who knows well the Dionne story is that anything less would be rank injustice. For Davis has been a great deal more than photographer to the Dionne babies.

Let's go back to that cold morning in May of 1934 when "the Callander miracle" took place. A hurried country doctor, unschooled in the meaning of public interest in an unique event, distracted by his grim battle against death, was in charge of a chaotic neighborhood.

Davis Brings Vital Aid
At 9 o'clock that night, the big-city press, in the form of a crew of reporters and cameramen from the Toronto Star, the nearest really metropolitan paper, descended on Callander. One of the crew was Davis, and a lucky thing it was, for the quins, for Dr. Dafoe, and for the millions who have since reveled in Davis' pictures.

First in importance, Davis had with him, stowed in his car, some $175 worth of desperately needed medical supplies. He had rushed to Dr. Dafoe's Toronto brother, William Dafoe, noted baby specialist, and gotten a list of what might be needed. Then, without further instructions, he had dashed out, filled the bill, and packed the supplies for the trip. They were a vital help in Dr. Dafoe's fight.

By the fourth day, the newspaper crowd at Callander was overflowing every available room. In all the confusion, the desperate rivalry for pictures, Dr. Dafoe noted that one fellow seemed always ready to help, even at the expense of his immediate chances for a picture. That was Davis.

Gets First Pictures
On the fourth morning, Davis got his pictures, in the low-ceilinged little kitchen of the Dionne home—Dr. Dafoe with a group of the babies, Mrs. Dionne with the others.

On the next day, Davis almost missed his big picture chance because he was driving Nurse Cloutier through the snow to Bonfield to get some badly needed baby clothes.

When he got back, others had made the pictures, but because Davis had been serving the children, he was allowed to make a duplicate.

When those first pictures began to appear, help quickly materialized for the babies. On the seventh day, Davis, making a hurried trip to Toronto, picked up three incubators shipped from Chicago.

Davis ripped the rumble seat out of his car, packed the incubators, and immediately started again for North Bay.

At 10 o'clock at night he arrived at Dr. Dafoe's house, his car three-parts a wreck. The next morning the incubators were delivered at the Dionne house. They were a big factor in saving the babies' lives.

The Babies First
On the 10th day, Davis figured out a new one. To avoid any disturbance of the babies and those inside the Dionne home, he made a splendid picture of the babies through the window of the house.

He helped thaw out frozen milk for the distracted nurses, ran errands without number to North Bay drug or clothing stores, ferried back and forth to Toronto or Bonfield with nurses and supplies, cotton, and cod liver oil. In everything he did, it was "the babies first, the pictures second."

Davis' co-operativeness and care impressed Dr. Dafoe and when a contract was signed awarding exclusive rights to the babies' pictures, it would have been less than justice to pick anyone but Davis.

Keeps Up Good Work
Exclusive privileges did not dull Davis' ardor for the babies. It was he who brought the first mosquito-netting, and helped to nail it over the windows of the Dionne house when the June flies grew so dangerous.

It was Davis who made a check at Covey's, without wakening the Dionne household, by driving past the house. If all was well, a nurse waved from the window.

Returning, Davis passed by Dr. Dafoe's house. It was arranged that, should everything not be in good order, he would stop and awaken Dr. Dafoe. There were no telephones then.

The arrangement helped Dr. Dafoe to get a little badly needed sleep before his own little routine visits began.

It was Davis who came slithering into Dr. Dafoe's yard and drove him back in record time to the Dionne home when the babies had a bad sinking spell at three months of age.

And it was Davis who drove Nurse De Kiriline to Bonfield for treatment when she was badly burned by the upsetting of an oil lamp.

Mentor to Dr. Dafoe
It was through Davis that Dr. Dafoe learned to appreciate the interest of the outside world in the Dionne babies, and learned also to handle the flood of newspaper, radio, and magazine inquiries and requests that came in.

The doctor found that if he said, "No pictures today," or "That's enough for now," his words were law to Davis.

In all the later stages, Davis' vigilance for the quins' welfare never relaxed. He has refused, any number of times, to make pictures, often for important people, when the pose asked, or the circumstances, might be injurious.

Davis insisted on, and helped devise, the soft-filtered lights that have always been used to avoid possible eyestrain to the children from flashlights. He is World War I hero.

Except for brief intervals, such as when he was detached to fly hurriedly to cover Nova Scotia's dramatic mine entomb of last year, Davis has devoted all his waking hours to picturing the quintuplets and to their welfare.

To see his gentle, patient manner,

All ready? Now stand still and smile—a big smile! The quintuplets are having their pictures taken in their new winter suits. Annette, on the left, can't get her eyes off that newly cut Christmas tree on the toboggan. Next to her, Yvonne is having trouble with her helmet, which has slipped down over one eye. Next in line are Marie and Emilie, and they are perfect subjects, wearing their best smiles. Cecile, at far right, is all attention, just like a little soldier. Davis watches the lineup, ready to catch the quins at their best.

CLUB NOTES

Ozan-St. Paul

The Ozan-St. Paul Home Demonstration club met Friday, December 4 with Mrs. Wilbur Jones, with thirty members present.

The house was beautifully decorated for Christmas.

Miss Bullington gave an interesting demonstration on baking an Arkansas fruit cake. She also had a number of articles which were handmade and would make lovely Christmas gifts.

After the business meeting, Christmas carols were sung and a Christmas program was exchanged.

There was a beautiful Christmas tree and gifts were exchanged.

You would not suspect that he fought all through the hell of Vimy Ridge and Anis with the Canadian army, and came out with honorable wounds and a tawnyful of medals. He did, but you have to find it out from others.

You would not suspect that he has long been an ace of Canadian press photographers, but he has, been covering star assignments for years.

For work in covering the Canadian tour of the former King Edward VIII while Prince of Wales, Davis won royal praise.

When Fred Davis' "Merry Christmas" rings through the Dionne nursery this holiday season, it will carry additional authority from the fact that Davis, as much as anybody, helped to make it so.

A delicious salad plate was served by the hostess.

Mt. Pleasant

The Mt. Pleasant Home Demonstration club met with Mrs. L. Wright on Wednesday, December 9. A Christmas tree was well decorated in the dining room. Each member of the club brought a handmade gift for the tree.

Then everyone drew a name and received a gift. Miss Melva Ballington demonstrated the baking of a large Arkansas fruit cake. While the cake was baking a business meeting was held.

Club meeting places for the new year were decided upon, also new business was discussed.

Miss Bullington handed each member printed sheets of cake and candy recipes for the Christmas holidays.

All reported an extra jolly afternoon.

Tammany Hall and Texas in Quarrel

Both Want Speakership of House—Pennsylvania Favors Texas

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

Democrats inclined to view factional strife with alarm are wondering about the house of representatives leadership skirmishes between supporters of Sam Rayburn and John J. O'Connor. Traditional house sentiment at senatorial "meddling" in its affairs further complicates the situation for all concerned.

Among others, Vice President Garner (presiding officer of the senate) is in Washington working openly for Rayburn. It is not a matter of tacit support. Mr. Garner has said bluntly that he was here to see that his fellow Texan got the job.

Some Rayburn men intimated this meant support of the administration itself. O'Connor denials were quick and hot. Then spokesmen for the New Yorker pounced on Mr. Garner—he must have expected that—and Senator Guffey, acknowledged boss of things Democratic in Pennsylvania.

The O'Connor adherents thought Guffey had a good deal to do with the pledge of Democratic house members from his state to back Rayburn. He blandly denied responsibility. Those who took the trouble to look up the 1934 speakership fight found that Pennsylvania's declaration of support for the late Joe Byrns was instrumental in his victory.

Buchanan Seeks Compromise
Rayburn campaigners contend O'Connor himself has been casting about in the senate for support, and cite a letter in which he asked Senator Clarke of Missouri for aid. They predict that in the end their candidate will win by acclamation.

But there was growing apprehension as rival factions charted their offensives toward the opening of congress.

with Chairman Buchanan of the house appropriations committee first to speak up. He skirted the edge of the Rayburn-O'Connor controversy, contenting himself with calling for a "wise leadership" to prevent the majority from splitting into warring blocs. That would not be amiable, he thought, if a "brutal" and dominating course was pursued. No one, however, is sanguine enough to think that Democratic lines will remain unbroken. Speaker Bankhead himself admits "we can't expect unanimity," but harmony-minded representatives hope salt won't be rubbed into wounds already painful.

Representative Rankin was so concerned over the tenseness that he proposed withdrawal of all candidates, himself included, in favor of Representative Doughton. He thought that a practical compromise.

Contrasting Types
A word about Rayburn and O'Connor would not be amiable for they give a pat illustration of just how different men bearing the political tag may be. The bald, stocky Rayburn is a small-town attorney from Texas, diligent and persistent. He speaks quietly and precisely, and is considered a mirror of the district he represents.

O'Connor, on the other hand, is a red-headed Irishman, brisk and positive in his manner. Those who remember his spectacular tilt with Father Coughlin will have a good idea of how easily his temper flares. His New York City district includes the Tammany wigwag and swank Park avenue.

It might seem, therefore, that the strength of the big city machines of the north, with Tammany at the helm, was pitted once again against the southern Democrats.

Pennsylvania Democrats already are in Rayburn's camp. Thus far no word has come from the Kelly-Nash (Chicago), Pendergast (Missouri) and Hague (New Jersey) machines. What does this discreet silence mean?

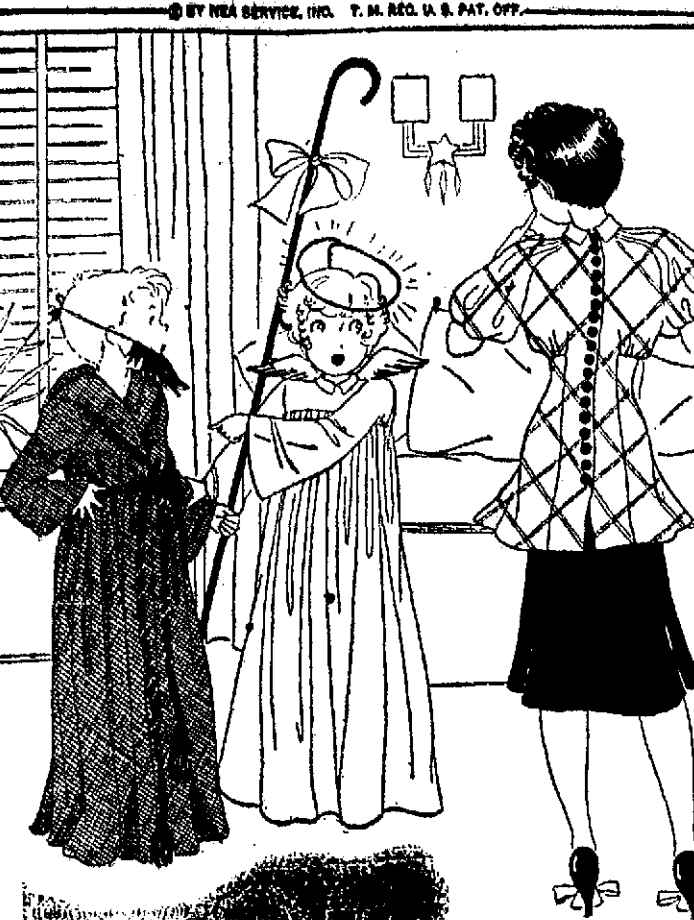

Big Job Ahead
The majority leader, no matter who he is, will have his work cut out for him. The size of his group alone will give him uneasy moments. Three hundred and thirty-three of the representatives are Democrats, and many of them are first-timers getting their initial taste of lawmaking. They will test the mettle of even the "wise leadership" so fervently hoped for by Mr. Buchanan.

O'Connor is certain to have an important say in house affairs regardless of the outcome of the leadership fight. Defeated for that honor he would return to his old post as chairman of the potent rules committee, there to virtually control the course of legislation. Much could happen in that committee which would distress the majority.

"I'll give him a piece of my mind," said the irate young woman. "Don't you mean a chip, my dear?" asked her bosom friend.

'Elastic Stomachs'

DENVER —(P)— The elasticity of stomachs explains why children participating in WPA "hot lunch" programs eat more on Tuesdays and Wednesdays than other days of the week, says Paul D. Shriver, Colorado WPA administrator.

"We found that the children get little to eat at home on Saturday and Sunday," Shriver said. "Then when they come back to school on Monday their tummies have shrunk and they are not able to handle a normal amount of food. By Tuesday they have 'stretched' and they fill up. Then they eat less on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday."

Relief Likely to Run Many Years

But Burden of "Unemployables" Now Rests on State Governments

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Long after the depression is over its problem child—the unemployables—will remain to trouble and perplex both local and federal administrations.

It has been at least six years since a man could get a job about any place and any time he wanted it. Six years is a long time in the 30 or 40 year working period of a man's life. What may have happened to him in those years?

Economics, welfare workers and employers have had experience before with depressions and their aftermath. They know it takes something out of a man to be without a satisfactory job for an extended period. Morale falls and skill diminishes.

Holdover Problem

The net effect on a once skilled man, three to six years away from his trade, is to make it hard for him to get back the job he once had. Naturally it is toughest on the less skilled, the "marginal" workers, who had employment at his trade only when times were fair to middling good.

With his skill diminished from disuse, several years added to his age, he represents a holdover problem to worry relief agencies long after many loose ends of the depression have been gathered up.

When Administrator Harry Hopkins turned back to the states the care of "unemployables," a million more or less, he had reference largely to aged, ill and lame whose condition could scarcely be chargeable fully to the depression.

But what about the "moderately employable" man who can't quite cut his way back into private employ even when better days bring more jobs?

Looking at that spectacle, relief experts predict a dozen years hence public money—federal, state or local—will be dribbling out to veterans of the

Peace Contrasts for Birthday

Outside the swirl of international diplomacy, Frank B. Kellogg, above, former U. S. secretary of state and world court member, now retired, goes into his eightieth year with evidence that the peace measures to which he gave much of his career are crumbling under the stress of new European crises. Kellogg's greatest single achievement was the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. He was the 1929 Nobel peace prize winner. His birthday falls on Dec. 22.

NYA Jobs Go Begging

Some colleges in Washington have not filled much more than half of their quotas of $25-a-month jobs under the National Youth Administration. Many students hunt out full time patronage as elevator operators for congress, or as capital police, then go to school on the side.

MIGHTY MEN OF MYSTERY

Who will succeed to the place of Sir Basil Zaharoff, ace War Merchant, as Europe's man of mystery? There are men, hardly known to the public, who wield vast power through immense fortunes and influential connections. Simon Patino, Bolivian Tin King, is the subject of this concluding article of Morris Gilbert's series.

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS—Practicing an internationalism that would make Leon Trotsky green with envy, dabbling in at least one war in a fashion which would have given the late Sir Basil Zaharoff pause, playing the part of "mystery man" so well that it took a senatorial investigation to make him interesting to the general public, Simon Patino, "tin king of Bolivia," lives in Paris and thinks in terms of metallurgic wealth.

It's a long way from the breath-taking Andean ranges of Bolivia to the broad and leafy Avenue Foch which pursues its elegant route from the Etoile to the Bois de Boulogne. Longer still from the humble home in La Paz where Patino was born to the mansion he now occupies. Perhaps longest of all to the social serenity of fashionable Paris from the torrid swamps of the Gran Chaco—into which Patino poured a fortune which some say amounted to 100 million francs to fight a way to a seaport on the broad river which would give him tin—a cheap outlet to the world's markets.

To Paris, Simon Patino (left) is Bolivia in Person. The mansion on Avenue Foch in the French capital is only one of many residences used by the fabulously wealthy "tin king."

"The whole Patino company" was backing Bolivia. It was testified in the hearings of the Nye commission in Washington. When Bolivia wanted five big American planes it was suggested that the Patino Company and Simon Patino himself should guarantee payments—and the guarantees were "perfectly good." So testified another witness.

He's Bolivia to Paris

As far as Paris is concerned Patino is Bolivia, and vice versa. Friends of his children—who have made remarkable marriages, one son, for instance, marrying into the royal and ancient house of Bourbon—declare over the teacups that Patino's wealth is as great as the whole Bolivian national debt. Patino, furthermore, is Bolivian minister in Paris, and, according to one cynical correspondent writing in "La Luminere," in that post, "defends his private interests and, on occasion, those of his country."

His relations with Eugene Schneider, head of the great French arms firm of Schneider-Creusot, made it possible, the same account asserts, for Creusot to find itself, during the Gran Chaco war, in the enviable position of supplying arms officially to both sides—to Paraguay and Bolivia, too.

For other information as to Simon

Patino's business transactions, one can apply in Wall Street, N. Y., for Bolivia has long been a happy hunting ground of American industry, particularly in tin, copper, lead, and zinc, and it isn't surprising that certain interests there should know him well.

Bad Debt Started Fortune

The romance of Patino's life is that his fortune was based on a bad debt. A poor peasant couldn't pay his obligations to Patino's general store in La Paz. He offered, instead, the title to a mountain, gaunt, barren, ugly. Patino hesitated, made the best of a bad bargain. The mountain turned out to be practically all tin.

Presently, the tin mountain became a sheet of thick negotiable paper, and Patino, imagining that he could deal better with such property in Paris, and also perhaps having grown tired of the attitude at La Paz, brought his family here. He came with diplomatic status and the reputation of being the richest man in South America except possibly, old Juan Vicente Gomez, "El Buzamerito," tyrant of Venezuela, now defunct.

Life in France is pleasant for Simon Patino. Besides his mansion in the Avenue Foch, he has a chateau near Nice, a villa at Biarritz, and a manor in the Siene-et-Oise. He has found other interests than Bolivian to amuse himself with, notably, a financial company incorporated for 10 million francs in Zurich, the Corporation for Industrial Securities, of which he was chairman.

Children Have Done Well

His children, too, enjoy themselves. His son, Antenor, married Dona Christina de Bourbon, a member of the Spanish branch of that famous family.

His daughter Elena is married to the Spanish grandee, the Marquis del Merito, one of the best "guns" in Europe, a big-game hunter, at present applying his talents in shooting Reds in Spain. In 1934, it is recounted, the marquis passed through Spain on his way to a hunting expedition in Africa. When Spanish customs officials opened his luggage they found a big red and yellow monarchist flag. Merito stated that he always carried this flag with him into danger, to be used as a shroud in case of his death. The marchioness is often to be seen driving in the Bois de Boulogne behind a superb little team of Hungarian ponies.

There is another daughter, Luz Mila. One of the curious things about these girls was, their friends say, that they never had any pocket money. "Maybe they don't realize what money is," they say.

Plans Comeback In Oil

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Governor E. W. Marland, who once headed the $200,000,000 Marland oil company, now the Continental, plans to stage a comeback in the oil business.

Since he retired as president of the Marland company in 1928 Marland saw a personal fortune dwindle. But he retained his interest in the progress of the industry and was instrumental in bringing about formation of the interstate oil compact commission two years ago.

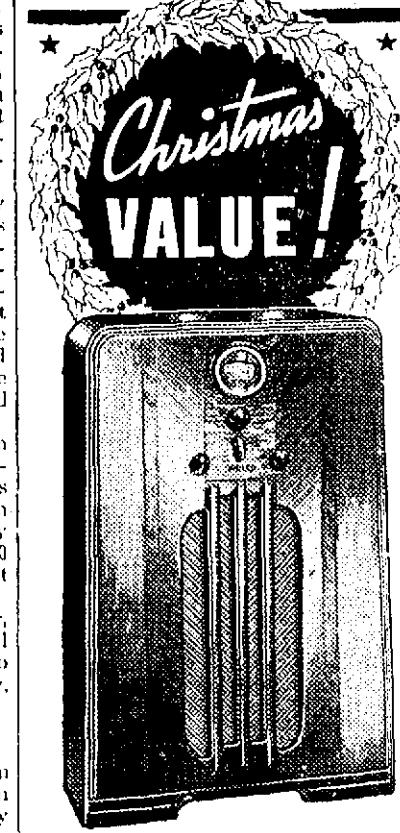

Now the governor has announced he and Howard B. Drake of Ponca City, a former Marland oil company official, expect to drill oil wells on a lease they have acquired somewhere in Texas.

"When I complete serving out there—maintaining two years of my term as governor I expect to retire from politics and give my entire attention to the oil business," Marland said.

The Chinese, Arabs, Greeks, Etruscans, Finns, and Italians have all been claimed as originators of the compass.

Christmas Decorations

A trip to the woods will provide Christmas decorations suitable for any Hempstead county home.

Cedar roping made by tying short branches of cedar together is soft and rich looking and makes a becoming frame for doorways or mantel. The decorations should center about one point of interest, preferably the fireplace. If there is one, suggests Mrs. Ida A. Fenton, Extension economist in home management, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. A corner of the room or a door may be chosen if there is no fireplace. Small trees planted in red tubs may be placed on either side. Bunches of cypress may be placed on the mantel, together with vases of gay branches of hawthorn with red berries. Two candlesticks holding tall red candles will add to the mantel decorations.

A tree is easily fastened in a tub by cutting a 6-inch board as long as the tub is wide, nailing it to the trunk of the tree, and placing it in the tub. The tub is the filled with sand and painted red or covered with red crepe paper.

Turkey Dinner

A 15 or 20 pound turkey, roasted to a turn, means a Christmas dinner that is as pleasing to the eye as to the appetite. Turkeys are plentiful, and can be purchased in almost any size from the 8-pound bird that will be sufficient for a small family of three, to a 25-pound turkey for a large family gathering.

There is an art to selecting a turkey for Christmas dinner, according to Miss Gertrude E. Conant, Extension nutritionist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. Gray feet denote a young turkey, and pink feet denote age, so that turkey should be purchased with the feet on. It should be selected three or four days before Christmas, killed and dressed, and thoroughly chilled but not frozen.

The bony splinters in the drum sticks are tendons, and may be pulled out before cutting off the feet. Miss Conant suggests a dry dressing, with celery and onions. A roasted turkey should be roasted three hours at 300 degrees Fahrenheit, and a half hour at 400 degrees.

To complete the Christmas dinner, Miss Conant suggests a fruit cocktail or clear soup, cranberry frappe, two vegetables, fresh coconut salad, jelly, pickles, and plum pudding.

Sleeve Board

While Hempstead county women have joined the fashion parade in puffed and complicated sleeves, they find that ironing and pressing is quite a problem. A sleeve board is the answer. Even with straight sleeves, this device means a better pressing job in less time.

A sleeve board may be constructed at home from scrap lumber. Directions for making it are given by Mrs. Ida Fenton, Extension economist in home management, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Select 2 pieces of one-inch lumber about 20 inches long, and a third piece of 2 by 4, 4 inches long. The board intended for the top should be 1 1/2 inches wide at a point 3 inches from one end and tapered to 1 1/4 inches at a point 3 inches from the other end. The small end of the board is used to slip into the armhole of the sleeve. Each end must be rounded off so there will be no rough corners. The bottom board is shaped in similar way, making it 6 or 7 inches wide at one end and 4 or 5 inches at the other. The wider base holds the sleeve steady while press-

3 Schools Suspended Over Ineligibility Row

Hope, DeQueen and Prescott Are Out

Athletic Group Finds That Schools Violated Football Rules

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Athletic Association suspended indefinitely Hope, De Queen and Prescott high schools Saturday for violation of its regulations.

The association executive committee in special session held that the three schools failed to abide by AAA rules during the past football season by playing non-resident students.

Players ruled ineligible were Center J. L. Cook and Halfback Leonard Bearden of Hope; Woodrow McLenore of De Queen and Glenn Parker of Prescott.

Under the ruling, none of the schools will be permitted to engage other state teams in athletics until it has been reinstated.

President J. C. Clary said each of the schools had a right to appeal the decision to the full body of the AAA. The next regular meeting of this group will be held in November, Clary said it was doubtful whether a special meeting could be called before then.

The executive committee could reinstate either of the schools, Clary asserted, if the institution presents sufficient evidence to substantiate claims that the alleged ineligible players are really eligible.

The committee took no action on games played by the three schools during the past season.

Clary declared that the committee did not rule on whether the coaches were at fault in the matter. "In fact we, rather sympathize with the coaches," Clary said. "We found evidence which would indicate that they were not fully informed of the circumstances."

Coach Foy Hammons of Hope said he felt the punishment "was a little severe," but would abide by it.

"It takes rulings like this to clean up athletics in Arkansas, I'm willing to accept it," he declared.

He said that in his opinion rulings on both his players were made on technicalities and that he could produce evidence which would convince the committee that both players ruled ineligible were really Hope residents.

The committee held that under AAA rules Cook was a resident of Stamps and Bearden lived in Washington.

Hammons asserted that Cook's father while formerly living at Stamps now operated a grocery store in Hope and that he obtained a written statement from the boy's father before opening of the football season to the effect that his son was a Hope resident.

In the case of Bearden, Hammons explained, the boy's father is Sheriff of Hempstead county, and although the county seat is located in Washington, the Bearden for the past year have resided in Hope.

Several weeks ago Hammons wrote Clary asking that the executive committee look into "athletic conditions" at De Queen, charging that the latter school was playing ineligible men.

Coach C. O. Crisswell of De Queen denied the accusations, and in turn, challenged the eligibility of several Hope players.

"Marie, when you wait on my guests at the table tonight, please don't spill anything."

"Don't you worry, me'am. I know how to keep my mouth shut."

Ruth: I wonder when Arthur is going to propose? He's been going with me for nearly six months.

Elsie: You'd have to wait six months more. He didn't propose to me for nearly a year.

Plans Are Drafted for Football Loop

High School Coaches Discuss Plans for "Big 14" Conference

LITTLE ROCK—Tentative plans for a state high school conference which would award an annual state football championship were drafted by a committee composed of Coach Garland Beavers of North Little Rock, Allan Dunaway of Pine Bluff, J. D. Clary of Fordyce and Gordon Campbell of Little Rock Saturday.

The plans will be submitted to coaches, principals and superintendents of the schools this week and they will be given an opportunity to voice their opinion before January 15.

Under the proposed plan, the conference would be composed of 14 teams, including Pine Bluff, Little Rock, North Little Rock, Hot Springs, Hope, Camden, Blytheville, Jonesboro, Fort Smith, Clarksville, Russellville, El Dorado, Fordyce and Forrest city.

Each team would be required to play six conference games to be eligible for consideration for the state championship. Members of the committee said that only five games would be necessary to qualify next season. Members of the conference would be required to win one or more conference games every two years to retain membership.

Non-Members Eligible Also

Non-conference teams would be eligible for the state title if they played the required number of conference games. A board would be elected to conduct the necessary business. Member teams would be required to observe all regulations of the Arkansas Athletic Association. New members could be elected by a vote of the conference at regular meetings.

No post season game would be permitted. Representatives of proposed members will meet in Little Rock the Saturday following the state high school basketball tournament to discuss final organization.

The movement for a conference was started at a meeting of 10 high school coaches here December 5 sponsored by Mervin Perry, coach of Hot Springs High School.

He: "Can you recall the two happiest days of your life?"

She: "Certainly; the day I was married and the day I got a divorce."

Defensive Systems Complicate Caging

No Such Thing as Safe Lead in Basketball Contest

By HOWARD CANN
Head Coach, New York University

NEW YORK—Basketball's very nature makes it a high-scoring game. A contest often can be won or lost in an incredibly brief time. Personally, I don't believe there is any such thing as a safe lead in the sport.

It is for this reason that coaches spend a great deal of time on defense. A team's ability to score is worthless unless it can keep the opposition from matching it. Because of this, several basic defensive systems have been formed to be employed throughout the country.

I would say there are three major defenses—man-for-man, zone, and man-for-man all over the court. The third is really a subdivision of the first, but so successfully has it worked in some cases that it deserves individual rating.

In man-for-man style, each player keeps a specified opponent under lock and key.

The ordinary man-for-man defender picks up his quarry crossing the center line and sticks with him from that point forward. This itself is an assignment requiring concentration and condition, but the most difficult part of the job is switching.

Imaginative Players Make Man-for-Man Defense Tight

This takes place when a defensive player, seeing a man loose near the basket, changes to that opponent to prevent him from doing damage. Simultaneously, one of his teammates, usually the fellow who had been covering the player who has worked free, transfers to the opponent of the defender who has switched to cover the free man.

Some youngsters coming into college seem to have a sixth sense for switching, and they make excellent man-for-man material. Others must practice endlessly to learn how to switch, and even then they slip up in a difficult situation.

But when defensive players have imagination and foresight in switching, they make a man-for-man defense airtight.

Zone defense is plotted differently. Every boy on the team is accorded a definite zone for which he is responsible. Primarily he is assigned to play the ball, but must cover men coming into his zone.

By means of arm waving, the zone defender attempts to block shots coming anywhere near him. With the court completely charted, many are stopped.

Zone is most effective on narrow courts, where the defenders are able to blanket the area. But the zone has its weak spot, in fact, several of them, so many wise coaches keep it as a surprise maneuver to be used only for one half and when least expected.

Bounce Passes Used to Break Up Interceptions

One of the methods used to break up zone play is a variation of the delayed attack. Three men go downcourt, one to play near the hoop, but not in the foul lane, and two to occupy the corners. This is done against a 2-2 defense, and the two deep men are hard put to stop the maneuvering which follows. The same tactics are used against 2-1-2 or 2-3 zones.

On other occasions, bounce passes are employed to break interceptions. Some gifted teams solve the problem by merely staying away and letting their long shots fire away.

The man-for-man all over the court system has its most prominent exponent in New York in Columbia. Paul Mooney's men do not wait to cross the center line to pick at their foes. They go after them in their opponent's defensive line. By hustling and crowding the opposition, they force errors.

The results are interceptions in convenient scoring territory. With the other team still moving the other way, it's not hard to whip across a score. But to play this type of game a team must be in perfect shape. Columbia generally is, too. That is why it wins so often.

Russellville Grid Coach Successful

Has Record of 97 Football Wins Against 38 Lost and 12 Tie Games

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Meet Arkansas' high school coaching veterans—

Wallace Bailey, at 35, has the longest period of continuous service as coach at a single Arkansas high school—14 years as mentor of Russellville's Crimson Cyclones.

Only Earl F. Quigley of Little Rock high school has a longer period of service, and he ceased active football coaching last spring to become athletic director at the capital city school.

While Bailey has been at Russellville, Cyclone football teams have won 97 games, lost 32, tied 12. His most successful eleven was that of 1933 which won all 11 games, averaging 50 points per contest.

Russellville was one of the leading claimants of the mythical state title in 1924 and in 1928 only a 6-7 reverse at the hands of Hot Springs' Trojans kept them from a perfect season. The Cyclones were undefeated in 1935 but had two scoreless ties. This year they won eight, lost one, tied one.

A native of Greenville, Texas, Bailey has called Russellville home since he came here with his parents in 1911. After graduating from the local high school which he was later to coach, he won his skeppskins at the University of Arkansas and West Point Military Academy.

At West Point he mixed his football with a little track, baseball, lacrosse and soccer. He was most successful on the cinders, running the two-mile as a member of the Melrose Athletic Club of Boston. His time for the distance was 9 minutes, 4 seconds.

Bailey was a pitcher and outfielder on the same baseball team with Walter French, former Little Rock Traveler and major leaguer, but according to his own assertion "never could hit worth anything."

His interest in track probably explains the success of his thriceclads in state meets.

Since Bailey took over the coaching reins, Crimson Cyclone trackmen have lost but four district meets. For the last five years Russellville has been forth or better in state meets, finishing second three of these years.

The Cyclones came closest to winning the state title in 1934 when they scored 28 points to 28½ for Little Rock, winner of the diadem for the past 11 years.

Bailey's hobbies in one-two-three order, he says, are Philosophy, Socialism and checkers, adding with a smile, "I'm best at checkers."

The European table grape is now being successfully grown in Southwest Texas.

Mississippi Team Defeats Chicago

Columbus Lays Claim to National High School Championship

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—The Lee High Generals of Columbus, Miss., staked their claim for a national high school football championship at today with a 7-6 victory over Austin High of Chicago.

The margin of victory was provided by the perfect placement kick of Leslie Dodson, Lee High backfield ace, after he had shot a short touchdown pass in the fourth period to tie the score.

Austin, with a heavier team, took the lead in the first minute of play in the second period when its backfield star, Bill Decorevont, raced wide around end for six yards and a score. His pass for the extra point failed.

Both teams were undefeated. Austin held the undisputed high school title of Chicago and was recognized as one of the best prep school teams in the Middle West. Lee High held an unofficial claim to the Mid-South honors.

Approximately 4,000 braved cloudy, cold weather to watch the intersectional battle, played on a sloppy, soggy field.

Austin showed superiority in the first half, with its brilliant Decorevont showing the way. He led a passing and driving attack from mid-field which resulted in Chicago's lone touchdown when he sped around end on the six-yard line.

As had been predicted, the battle pitted Decorevont against Dodson—the more so because of poor playing conditions.

Clever shovel passes and smashing line drives by Dodson led Columbus to scoring position on the six-yard line. Here Dodson—fullback—shoveled a pass to J. Dodson, his brother, who played end. The flankman caught the ball behind the center and drove through center to score.

Dodson's victory place-kick brought a wild demonstration from partisan fans.

JUBILEE FOR THE WORLD'S WEALTHIEST MAN

HIS Exalted Highness, Asaf Jah, Muzaffar-ul-Mulk-Wal-Mulak, Nizam-ul-Mulk, Nizam-ud-Daula Nawab Mir Sir Asman Ali Khan Bahadur Fatch Jung, the Nizam of Hyderabad, India, a reputed wealthiest man in the world, this year celebrates his silver jubilee as ruler of this vast and populous Indian territory.

Instead of receiving gifts from his people, he is giving them valuable presents. For, in honor of his 25th year as ruler of Hyderabad, the Nizam has set aside millions to clear slums from his cities, to reclaim land, build highways, and establish modern radio stations. In each town he has placed a modern radio receiver, so that his people may hear the voices that come through the air in the four main languages of the land.

Hyderabad, being a feudal state, conveys all the income from its natural wealth—in coal, cement, silk, cotton, oilseeds—to the Nizam. His wealth, as a result, is said to be unsurpassed. He has given much of it to education and scholarships, as well as many local charities.

Hagood Criticism Arouses the Army

General Advocates Use of Peace-Time Materials for Uniforms

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON.—The army's cry of disapproval at the suggestion of General Johnson Hagood that the next war be fought in overalls, half way down Pennsylvania avenue.

General Hagood is recalled as the officer who once described WPA funds as "stage money," and thereby paved the way for ending his military career and beginning a literary career.

Hagood's idea was that war was no time for fuss, feathers and brass buttons. War is a time to get men in the field, skilled as well as they can be in the time allowed, and ready with a serviceable weapon to meet the enemy.

Sings Sensible Song
In a series of magazine articles as well as in a previous publication he urged the army's often most sensitive spot—the service of supply. He recalled that during the war the soldiers had to have a certain type of suit, the pants tight fitting around the lower leg, the same as now. Shoes had to conform to a certain last, be of uniform natural leather color, and tanned in a certain little used way. Buttons had to be of special material imported from abroad. The color had to be khaki. General Hagood talks in terms of holding the enemy away from the door at the lowest possible cost in keeping with sound military principles. He said American mills, on short notice, could not make enough standard uniforms. He suggested that the army adopt styles of clothes which the mills could turn out at once at peak production. Overalls was one item.

Now to the army officer, to whom trimness is a battle to Godliness, the thought of a battalion marching down the streets in loose flapping trousers was simply appalling.

May Seek Rehauling
What will come of Hagood's suggestion is problematical. The army's new national defense scheme contemplates mobilization of domestic production but makes no mention of flapping pants. Hagood is probably right at least in with a sardonic eye to prodding the army management into a soul-searching survey as to whether some of the "thus and so" regulations can't be forgotten in time of war. Commanders often break them when they can't benefit by them.

Hagood is probably right at least in one respect. If the enemy began laying down a barrage on Seattle or New York, chances are the defense would be mobilized in the best it could find in a hurry, without insisting on bottle-neck pants.

Peace Mission of Americas Doubtful

U. S. Program Partly Spiked by League Members in South America

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—South American republics have demonstrated once again their evident conviction that the United States is a grand fellow whose peace proposals should be taken with a grain of salt.

Down across the equator to Buenos Aires went the U. S. delegation with a neutrality pact which, it could be pointed to with pride, had "kept us out of war" with Ethiopia and Italy. President Roosevelt followed and was given a demonstration in the Argentine capital that fairly purpled the air with felicitations.

U. S. Backs Down
Then began the negotiations. Then the United States began to back out of first one position and then another as it found various of the Latin American republics averse to them. Principally bent on compelling the United States to back out was Carlos Saavedra-Lamas, Argentine foreign minister, president of the league of nations assembly and Nobel peace prize winner. The meat of the United States neutrality proposal was contained in a 75 word article providing that in event American nations ducked all mediation proposals and insisted on war with each other, other American nations should bolster their fighters with "arms, ammunition or implements of war."

To allay fears the proposal was supplanting the league of nations, to which Argentina and several other Latin American nations belong, Secretary of State Hull emphasized it applied only to the Americas.

The United States proposed that arms shall not be shipped to either side, regardless of which was adjudged the aggressor. That was too big a step for the Latin American republics, for their interests are harmonious. Besides, such impartiality would outlaw sanctions, and be contrary to league functioning. Some South American minds must have asked:

"They are telling us that the Monroe doctrine is dead, but are they using this means of insuring against league intervention in South America?"

A substitute proposal was drawn up under which each nation would decide, when the time came, just how neutral it would be.

In order to give all the American republics a chance to talk over a threat of war within the Americas or a war outside, a "permanent" consultative post was proposed.

Saavedra-Lamas wrinkled his nose at "permanent" and that word went out also, leaving the conference to consider merely the proposal for consultation in time of trouble here or abroad, together with recommendations that all the republics ratify the several already existing non-aggression and mediation pacts.

And that was almost exactly the progress Latin-American experts in Washington predicted would be made. Just how important such progress is considered here may be told another time.

Slip Covers Serve House Year 'Round

No Longer Are They Just to Keep Off Summer Sun and Dust

By ELISABETH MAY BLONDEL
Prepared by McCall's Magazine for the Associated Press

Slip covers are no longer just things to keep the summer sun and dust off the furniture. They are now all-year-round decorations—and offer a way of redecorating very friendly to the budget.

They are no longer hard to make. The new slip cover patterns are as easy to use as a dress pattern. Clear drawings show every step and numbers show how the pieces are joined.

For instance, in one of the detail drawings, the two parts numbered "6" come together at the seam joining the outside arm piece and the inside arm piece at the top of the arm. The parts numbered "8" form the point of the inside arm piece. The extra material is pushed down between the arm and the seat—all around the seat. Anyone who has ever sat on a skimpily fitting cover has learned the importance of a large seam allowance at this point.

How the cord finish can be inserted in the seams when the cover is being sewn together is shown in the other detail drawing. A cording foot is used on the machine—the foot can come close to the cord and sew it securely.

The variety of charming slip cover materials now in the stores is bewildering—all colors and all kinds of patterns, large and small. The beginner might best start with plain linen or jasper or a chintz or cretonne with a small all-over design; a fabric with large motifs has to be cut and matched carefully and needs more experience.

Smart and modern is the idea that the same material should not be used
